Effective: January 16, 2015

(A) The authority may establish and impose reasonable fees for the transactions specified in this rule:

(1) For its services provided in administering, managing and supervising the authority's college savings programs, the authority may charge its account owners fees in such amounts as are necessary, in the sole discretion of the authority, to pay all costs and expenses for the authority's said services.

(2) For non-sufficient fund occurrences, for account ownership changes for beneficiary changes, for other requests from account owners and/ or beneficiaries which require the authority's personnel to perform excessive and/or labor intensive work in order to comply with said request and/or for any other unique situation which the authority reasonably deems to warrant the imposition of a fee.

(B) The authority, in its sole discretion, may waive or suspend, in whole or in part, any one or more of the fees set forth in paragraph (A)(2) of this rule upon application by an account owner or other interested person. The authority may require documentation or other evidence before granting any such waiver or suspension.
