

Ohio Administrative Code Rule 3352-88-02 Parenthetical subtitles.

Effective: November 13, 2004

When the department of human resources determines that the positions which have been classified under any one title include a greater variety of duties and skills than could be tested by a single uniform examination, the department of human resources may establish parenthetical subtitles to indicate the specialized nature of positions within the general classification. Such parenthetical titles shall be descriptive of the duties performed and they shall not operate to alter the pay range assignment of any employee. No employee shall be required to submit to an additional examination because of the assignment of a parenthetical subtitle to a position, which he/she occupies.
